

Artist: Claude Monet

Claude Monet was born in Paris, France in 1840, and died in 1926. He is considered the “Father of Impressionism” and would paint what ever was around him. Monet wanted to paint everyday scenes to show that art was everywhere and that a painting did not have to be perfect. To do that, he had to capture light and shadows at specific times of the day. Claude Monet is best known for the Water Lilies series.

Artist: Claude Monet

Claude Monet was born in Paris, France in 1840, and died in 1926. He is considered the “Father of Impressionism” and would paint what ever was around him. Monet wanted to paint everyday scenes to show that art was everywhere and that a painting did not have to be perfect. To do that, he had to capture light and shadows at specific times of the day. Claude Monet is best known for the Water Lilies series.

Artist: Claude Monet

Claude Monet was born in Paris, France in 1840, and died in 1926. He is considered the “Father of Impressionism” and would paint what ever was around him. Monet wanted to paint everyday scenes to show that art was everywhere and that a painting did not have to be perfect. To do that, he had to capture light and shadows at specific times of the day. Claude Monet is best known for the Water Lilies series.

Artist: Claude Monet

Claude Monet was born in Paris, France in 1840, and died in 1926. He is considered the “Father of Impressionism” and would paint what ever was around him. Monet wanted to paint everyday scenes to show that art was everywhere and that a painting did not have to be perfect. To do that, he had to capture light and shadows at specific times of the day. Claude Monet is best known for the Water Lilies series.

Artist: Claude Monet

Claude Monet was born in Paris, France in 1840, and died in 1926. He is considered the “Father of Impressionism” and would paint what ever was around him. Monet wanted to paint everyday scenes to show that art was everywhere and that a painting did not have to be perfect. To do that, he had to capture light and shadows at specific times of the day. Claude Monet is best known for the Water Lilies series.